CHRIS MCINTYRE JOINS CHANGE:HEALTHCARE AS DIRECTOR OF PRODUCT MANAGEMENT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., (January 18, 2009) – Chris McIntyre has been named director of product management for change:healthcare, it was announced today by company Co-Founders Christopher Parks and Robert Hendrick. McIntyre’s role will be to develop and manage the healthcare technology firm’s growing list of current and future products.

“We’re pleased to bring in Chris and his deep experience to lead the change:healthcare team in our product development and management efforts,” Parks said in making the appointment. “Chris understands how to build and replicate web-based products and services that are intuitive, collaborative and support millions of users. Those skills will become invaluable as we continue our efforts to develop products that truly help consumers make smarter healthcare decisions, and companies control their healthcare benefit expenditures more tightly.”

McIntyre comes to change:healthcare from the Founder/CEO position of Podcast Alley, a San Francisco-based internet company that indexes and distributes consumer podcasts of all genres. He was also a founder and senior product manager at broadband entertainment network Mevio (formerly known as PodShow), founder and CEO of Anrovia Design, a Chicago boutique agency that develops online and offline marketing campaigns, print collateral and websites for the bioscience and gourmet housewares industries, and founder and CEO of Shirts By Mail, an online textile printing company.

He holds degrees from Purdue University in Computer Graphic Technology and Computer Programming Technology.
